We are the Richmond Group of Charities and we help people of all ages who have serious long term physical and mental health conditions like diabetes, dementia, depression or cancer. By working together, we aim to influence health policy and practice in England.

In England, there are at least 15 million people living with a long term health problem, more than 1 in 4 of our entire population, and they need and deserve good quality health and care.

The 15 million people we represent are the core user group of health services and major users of social care: only when these services get it right for this group, can they be said to be serving their proper purpose.

To help people with long term conditions the next Government must ensure:

1. Timely access to high quality health and social care
   - Timely access to high quality health and social care for those who need it, when they need it, without undue delays that can leave people anxious and in pain
     - Equal access to evidence-based treatments and good information and support, for all who need them, without variation by postcode or other non-clinical criteria

2. Increased funding and more sustainable models of care
   - Increased funding across the whole health and social care system to support people right now, and to build more sustainable models of care that work better for people with long term needs
     - The overall funding envelope for the health and care system needs to increase
     - Sustainable social care funding must be resolved as an urgent priority, moving away from piecemeal and short term approaches

Find out more by visiting our website www.richmondgroupofcharities.org.uk
3. Sufficient numbers of health and care staff

- Strong and urgent leadership is required to address increasing workforce and training shortages, which might be exacerbated by the UK decision to leave the EU

4. Effective coordination of services, staff and data

- Commissioners need to work with community groups and patients to develop approaches that work for people
- The NHS’ ambition, through the Sustainability and Transformation Plan (STP) process, to better join up services in a place, needs support from political leaders if it is to deliver new ways of working and coordinated support for individuals
- There needs to be better collection and use of data to improve the health and wellbeing of service users

5. Investment in prevention

- Commit to robust implementation and monitoring of the “prevention” duty under the Care Act 2014
- Reverse the £200 million funding cuts to public health services that were imposed in 2015/16
- Develop and implement an urgent plan to tackle obesity, inactivity, alcohol consumption, and smoking

The Richmond Group of Charities is a collaboration of 14 of the leading health and social care organisations in the voluntary sector.

Find out more by visiting our website www.richmondgroupofcharities.org.uk